Quantum: Global Consulting Expertise

Professional, personal, proficient – this is our promise to clients when they work with Quantum Global Advisors. Whether an incident occurs locally or to your operations globally, Quantum immediately brings experience and expertise to help you stabilize situations, maintain operations and plan strategically for the future.

More than ever, companies experiencing a loss need Quantum's guidance to fully understand their options and develop the most effective plan to achieve their goals. Our consultative approach means we can manage all aspects of your claim certification — taking you from a strategic consideration of alternatives to the ultimate resolution of your claim.

Along the way, we offer an extraordinary breadth of service, providing guidance and solutions for all aspects of your property damage and business interruption claim. We've built Quantum on the principles of integrity and professionalism. Today, we are a recognized leader in forensic consulting, helping each client realize the value they deserve as quickly and effectively as possible.

Experience Creates Clarity

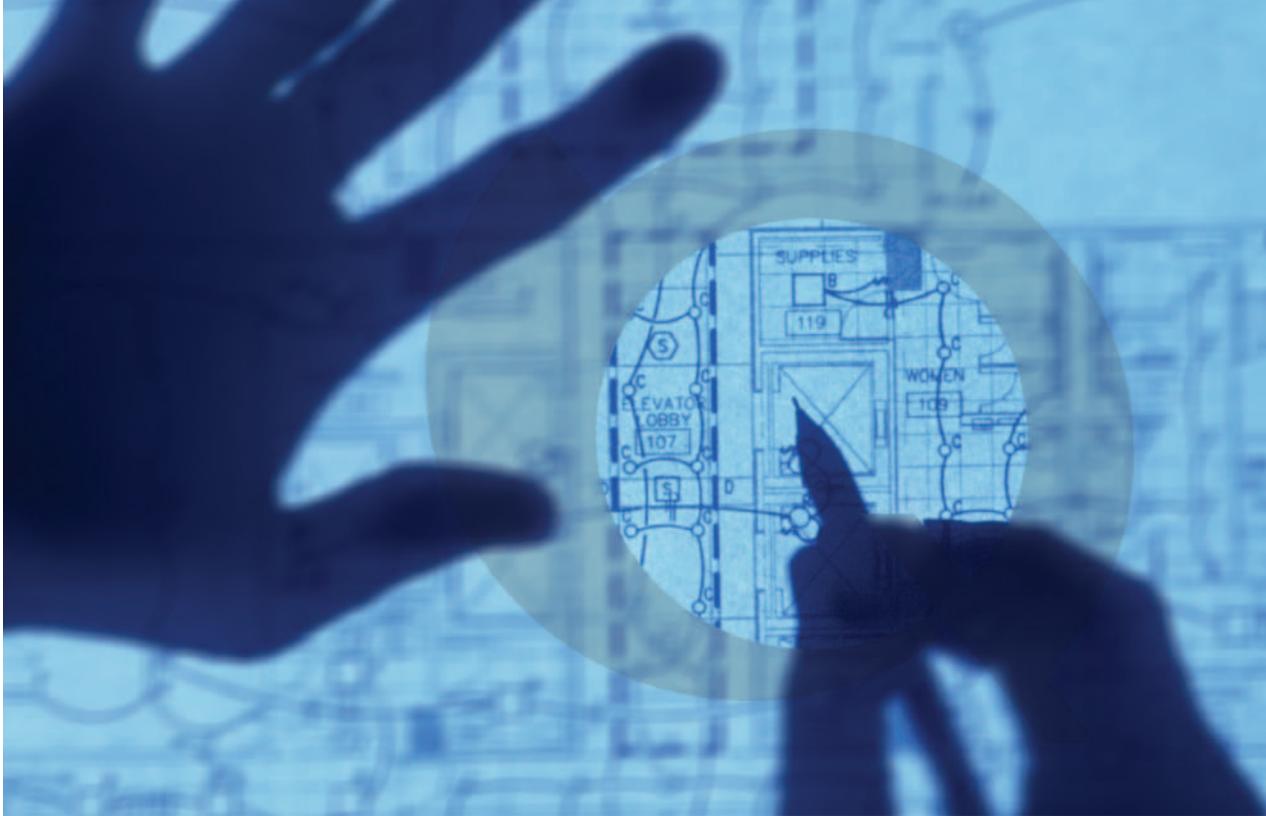

Every loss can create chaos for your business. Quantum is an expert in bringing order to even the most challenging situations. We help each client create both a clear picture of the road ahead and the actions necessary to achieve their goals.

Through many years of experience, we've worked with virtually every type of loss situation and a broad range of clients and industries. With insight from every engagement, we've developed a successful formula for the claims process.

Our expertise includes a commitment to client service and accountability. We focus on developing meaningful personal and professional relationships with our clients, as we understand the importance of both performance and responsiveness.

Custom Claims Insight

Your business is unique. Your loss is also unique. Quantum's claim management program recognizes the individual nature of each situation while our systematic process delivers a custom approach. As we prepare your claim, we design the best methods for data collection, claim activity management and damage assessment.

For years, our trusted team of professionals has included all of the disciplines that matter most to achieving your goals, including forensic engineering, property valuation, litigation support, forensic accounting and claim certification. As your partner, Quantum works closely with your insurance broker, accountant and attorney to address claim and coverage issues. Our services also include monitoring of the insurer's audit process to assist you in achieving maximum value.

Working with Quantum, you reach your goals quickly and efficiently. You can rely on our experience in working with the nuances of the property and business interruption claim process.

Quantum Value

From the moment of loss, there is an opportunity to set a positive course of action for the future. At Quantum, we take the time to learn about the impact of the event on your business. We evaluate the company's history and its short- and long-term business goals. We find time and time again, that a thorough understanding of available alternatives and a well-reasoned approach to claim certification yields better results.

As part of our planning process, we assist in determining the scope of the loss and create an organizational structure to effectively manage the claim. We also identify regular reporting and communication tools for management, identify and engage needed resources, and begin the process of implementing remedial strategies.

We know what it takes to prove the full extent of loss and damage, and have the international forensic experience to achieve your goals.
